Excerpt: . . . prosperity of the Church of-England, and the interests of trueReligion, that there is still room for increased exertion. There are still some objects, which, either from the coastitution of oneof those Societies, -are necessarily and upon principle ex cluded, or from the variety of claims upon the benevolent attention of the other, have been hi- therto only partially accomplished. Among these, that of more widely circulating the Prayer-Book and Homilies of the Church of England has appeared peculiarly important We have here an unequivocal admission that the circulation of the Prayer-Book was hitherto only partially accomplished: and the constitution of the Bible Society is assigned as a reason for it. We cannot say, that the variety of claims on the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge has been another cause; for the distribution of the Prayer-Book is one of its chief objects. The partial accomplishment ascribed to that Society relates only to the Homilies, which at that time were not on the Societys list of books for general distribution. Since then the distribution of the Prayer-Book had been only partially accomplished on account of its exclusion by the Society in its corporate capacity, it cannot be true, that supplied the corporate defect. In that case, it would 1 As our present inquiry relates to the distribution of the Prayer. Book, I of course confine my observations to it. Whether a gratuitous distribution of the Homilies is likewise necessary, we need not investigate at present. They...
