One are we in our purpose to do homage to him who was new birth of our soil, the first American. Our historians have searched the records anew and weighed in careful balances of critical judgment, his deeds, his life, his character. Our orators have fitly framed in flowing forms their tribute. Perhaps some poets will sing their paeans. But we have come, not to discuss the historians result, not to be swayed by poet s song, nor orator s praise, but that in the contemplation of his life we shall be better Americans. It still behooves us in our day, with our problems, to mark the immortal words of Lincoln himself, and to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead, and may I add, especially from the great martyr President, we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth. Out of the people, their very flesh and bone, came Abraham Lincoln. His birth is of all American leaders the lowliest. On February 12, 1809, at Big South Fork of Nolin Creek, Hardin, now LaRue County, Kentucky, in a cheerless, wretched cabin, he...
